THE SILVER MEN

ARE GROWING DESPERATE OVER

IN REPORTING IT TO THE HOUSE.

A Move to Make Free Coinage a Rider on the Pension Appropriation Bill, so as to Compel a Vote upon It.

WASHINGTON, February 4 .- [Special.]-The fight for free coinage is growing more and more bitter each day. It has become evident that the packed coinage committee of the house is determined not to report the senate silver bill. It is further understood by the free coinage men that Reed will rule a resolution to discharge the com-mittee out of order. With this knowledge before them, the free coinage leaders of both houses met this afternoon and decided upon a programme. If the programme is not changed open some time during the day. It will open the senate. The pension appropriation bill is now pending in that body, and during its discussion tomorrow one of the free coinage senators will offer the identical bill that passed the senate three bill. Of course it will pass; then the bill will go back to the house, and there will be no way for the house republican leaders to prevent a wote unless they smother the pension bill, which they cannot afford to do, as, in that event, there would be no funds to pay next year's pensions. Thus the house will be com-pelled to vote either to concur or non-concur in the senate free coinage amendment to the pension bill. As a majority of the house is known to be for free coinage, it seems that the amendment must be adopted.

HARRISON'S PREDICAMENT. In that event the president will be placed in a very embarrassing predicament. He age amendment to cannot veto the free coinage amendment to appropriation bill, and should he have the nerve to do that, the pensioners will have to go without any money next year, unless an extra session is called. And even then, the next congress being so overwhelmingly for free coinage, it is quite certain the free coinage amendment would again be tacked on the pension bill.

Thus Harrison's only hope of the programme mapped out today, and which is, by the way, one of Senator Gorman's shrewd moves, if carried out, is that the house can be persuaded to vote down the free coinage amendment. The free coinage men have some fear of this, for there are many free coinage republicans whose terms expire on the 4th of March, who would like to have good, fat government offices. Mr. Harrison would willingly swap them for votes against free coinage, and there is much fear that some congressmen would make such deals. Without the consummation of such trades, the chances for free coinage under the programme are good. Ingalls Back Again. Senator Ingalis returned from Kansas today, looking none the worse for his defeat. Every senator at the capitol, of both parties, crowded around him when he entered the senate chamber, to express regret at his defeat. He appeared in splendid spirits and told, his colleague many good stories about his canvass. He, however, added that the fight was a square one, and there was nothing for him to do but to bear his defeat philosophically. Senator Ingalls will commence at once preparing his farewell speech to the senate. He expects to make it the effort of his life.

THE SIOUX IN SOCIETY. The Big Braves Lionized in Washington

City. WASHINGTON, February 4.—The delegation o Sioux Indians, who are to confer with the "Great Father" about their grievances, are enjoying all the pleasures of sight-seeing, and every effort is being made by those who are in charge of them to render their trip to the capital enjoyable. A remarkable scene was presented at the Congrega-tional church, corner of Tenth and G streets, im-mediately after the services closed Sunday morning. It was a levee to a number of the Sioux Inwho participated in the Wounded Knee dians who participated in the Wounded Knee slaughter in South Dakota.

Just before Dr. Newman read his text one of the interpreters from Pine Ridge, now in the city with the bloodthirsty braves of the Stoux nation, entered the church, followed by Spotted Elk, the long-haired, fat and sleek chief, who was prominent in the recent outbreak. Behind came Major Swords, tall, middle-aged, straight as an arrow, with short hair an air of alertness and nervousness. Then came Spotted Horse, whose name has been connected with the principal engagements in the Pine Ridge campaign.

The eongreation was very large, numbering over a thousand, and in a body it turned its head toward the savage visitors, then arose to its feet. The choir missed a few bars of the anthem. It was some minutes before there was quiet. The preacher talked about the Publicans and the Pharisees—the one who thanked the Lord that he was not as wicked as other men, and the other who simply cried out for his sins. But there was no direct reference to the "heroes of Wounded Knee."

No sooner was the benediction said than there

No sooner was the benediction said than there occurred a movement in the direction of the Stoux. It required fifteen minutes for them to wend their way through the crowd. Old men. young men, women, and children flocked around and extending their trembling hands, said, "Howdy?" The braves enjoyed the sensation and showed their teeth and responded, "How."

In the large vestibule and classroom which were made one, the big three followed the interpreter, and a formal reception was held. It was a sight! The Indians ranged off in line, Washington home reception fashion, in the center of the prayer meeting room of one of the leading churches of the capital, receiving congratulations of the people. Congressmen and their wives and daughters were among the "star" gazers.

gressmen and their wives and daughters were among the "star" gazers.

These Indians, less than a fortnight since, were prowling about Pine Ridge agency trying to cut some white man's guzzier. They are now the heroes of the capital.

It was a proud moment for the Indians, and when the women innocently inquired of the interpreter whether Spotted Elk was a man or a woman, owing to his peculiar robe-like garb, old "Spot" smiled till his nose and chin almost touched, rubbed his hands together, and looked as though he would enjoy taking a few hundred of the wigs about him.

RUSHING BUSINESS THROUGH.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—After the transaction of morning business there was a short session for executive business, and when the doors were recopened, consideration of the fortification bill

The amendment reported by the appropriations ommittee appropriating $400,000 for rifled sea-oast mortars of east iron, hooped with steel (with Chandler's amendment to it requiring them to be wholly of steel, gave rise to a long discussion, at the close of which Mr. Chandler's amendment was agreed to, and then, at the suggestion of Mr. Dawes, the committee's amendment, as amended, was rejected.

The bill was then passed and the senate took up the military academy appropriation bill. There was but one amendment (and that one to the smount of $5,000) offered to the bill. It was agreed to, and the bill passed, the only delay being the time consumed in its reading.

The pension appropriation bill was then taken up, and went over as unfinished business.

After another brief executive session, the senate adjourned.

TRYING TO KILL IT.

The Majority of the Coinage Committee Slow With the Silver Bill.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—Before the he committee on coinage today the free silver men first had an inning and then Mr. Milliken, of Maine, argued in favor of the proposition to re-store the value of subsidiary coin, debased in 1838 from a fear that it would other-wise leave the country. As it was nearing the hour of adjournment, Mr. Bartine moved that when the committee adjourned today, it be to meet tomorrow at 10.30 c/clock. it be to meet tomorrow at 10:30 o'clock.

Representative O'Neill, of Pennsylvania, who Representative O'Neill, of Pennsylvania, who was present, solicited a hearing for a delegation from the Pennsylvania board of trade. Messrs. Williams and Bartine, looking at the clock, insisted on a vote on the latter's motion, realizing that if the hour of 12 was reached without a special order the committee would stand adjourned. This precipitated the committee again into the stormy tes of recrimination, from which it emerged yesterday.

Mr. Tracey—I don't know about that.

Mr. Carter called attention to the short time remaining for the consideration of the bill by the house, even if reported immediately, and pleaded for fair treatment.

Mr. Walker contended that the people had not yet had an opportunity to be heard. He did not want to have a meeting tomorrow, but was willing to meet three times next weak.

Mr. Bartines's motion to meet tomorrow was carried on a viva-voce vote. Then Mr. Vaux endeavured to restore peace by an offer to close the hearings next Tuesday if the Philadelphia delegation were heard before that day.

The free coinage men selzed gladly at this offer, and at their suggestion Mr. Vaux made a corresponding motion. But the otherside immediately began to labor with Mr. Vaux to induce him to change his motion, so as to avoid the requirement for voting next Wednesday; and while one man was objecting to this proposition and another to that, the chairman brought his fist down upon the table and declared the committee adjourned to meet tomorrow, leaving Mr. Vaux's motion pending.

We, therefore, urge upon congress the demand heretofore made by the National Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union for the free and unlimited coinage of silver upon the same terms and conditions that gold is now coined. With reference to my telegram of the 10th instant, this government is desirous to propose a Joint commission, such as that of 1871, with authority to deal without limitation and to prepare a treaty respecting the following subjects:

1. A renewal of the reciprocity treaty, of 1854, with the modifications required by the altered circumstances of both countries, and with extensions, deemed by the commission to be to the interests of Canada and the United States.

2. A reconsideration of the treaty of 1888 with respect to the Atlantic fisheries, with the aim of securing free admission into the United States markets of Canada and supplies and to tranship cargoes in Canada, all such privileges to be mutual.

The manner in which this proposal came to be made to the United States government is briefly as follows: Several weeks ago when negotiations were in progress between Newfoundiand and the United States looking to a reciprocity treaty, the Canadian government made representations that Canada should have the option of being included in any arrangements with that colony as to fisheries or trade. This convention was based on the solemn assurances given by the Newfoundland government two or three years ago and repeated on successive occasions, that if any special privileges were alhowed any country in regard to the purchase of supplies or bait in Newfoundland, such privileges would also be granted to Canada.

The secretary of state for the United States, when he learned of the position of affairs, insisted that negotiations should be carried on separately. He intimated, however, that he would not be unwilling to enter into negotiation with Canada, but preferred that they should be private and unofficial. The dominion government, thereupon, asked the imperial authorities to remind Mr. Blaine that Canada has always been ready for fair reciprocal arrangements and had made repeated efforts to that effect, which, how

The German Youth Who Was Taken Up by the Police. If there were more policemen like Gene Pelot, there would be less suffering in the

Yesterday morning mention was made of a young German who was brought to the sta-tion house in a very pitiable condition. He had been found in a box car seeking shelter from rain and cold. His ragged clothes were wet through and through, and when the poor fellow was brought in he was suffering greatly with cold and hunger.

He could speak none but his native German ongue and could not make himself understood

But he had a good face, and carefully wrapped up and hidden away in his ragged coat were found two small card photographs, one of the young man's father and the other of his sister, whom he had left behind in the Interest was aroused in the young man and

Interest was aroused in the young man and directly several gentlemen who happened in at the station house chipped in and made up money to supply his immediate wants.

Yesterday Patrolman Pelot, after he came off duty, took the German youth out on the streets and soon collected from benevolent gentlemen enough to buy him a complete outfit from hat to shoes, underclothing and all, with a neat collar and tie to complete it.

Then Officer Pelot carried him to a barber shop and had him a bath and a hair cut. When the young man came out he did not look like the same person. He could only speak his gratitude with his eyes, which spoke more eloquently than words could have expressed.

After this transformation Officer Pelot took the young man to several business houses and finally to Mr. Anton Kontz.

Mr. Kontz talked to him in his mother tongue. He soon found that he was well educated, and the very expression of his counternance told that he was worthy.

nance told that he was worthy.

The young German was given employment by Mr. Kontz, and this morning he begun work, the first he has been able to get since he came to this country a short while ago.

But for Officer Pelot's kind interest he might soon have found his way to the stockade. From there who can tell where he would have gone.

ED CASON'S REWARD. A Good Story About One of Atlanta's Well-Known Detectives.

Detective Ed Cason has a good nose for re A good while ago, according to a story that is familiar among members of the department, there was a reward of $50 offered for a certain notorious negro who had made his way to At-

Bigby, which necessitated his return home at once, the only business Cason began working up the case. So did Detective Thompson, now one of the popular captains of the force. One day Thompson collared his man and brought him to the station house. Cason was there and saw his partner approaching with the prisoner and a $50 smile all over his face. Cason happened to know the negro by sight, and for a moment it looked like he'd have to stand aside and let Thompson walk away with the reward. But a bright thought struck him. Slipping out the back door, he ran out on the street and arrested the first tough looking negro he came to. Hurrying back into the station house, where Thompson was preparing to lock up his prisoner, he exclaimed: "I've got him—$50 in him."

"Who?" asked Thompson, a little uneasily.
"Bill Blank, you know, who is wanted over in Birmingham."

"The devil you have," said Thompson.
"I've got him myself. That's him right "Not by a jugful," replied Cason. "I had a hard chase for the rascal, but I got him at last. Meet me tomorrow and I'll set 'em

Cason then called his partner aside and "Thompson, I'll tell you what I'll do."

"Well, you think you've got the $50 ne-"Yes, I know I've got him. There he is."
"But I think I've got him, too. Look at him over yonder."
"Eh, heh."

"One of us must be wrong. Maybe w both off and the chances are that one of may have the right man."
"That's so."

"Now, I'll tell you what let's do. We'li lock 'em both up and if either one proves to be the right negro, we'll divvy on the reward. That's fair isn't it!"

"Yes—I guess so."

"Well, what do you say?"

"All right."

"All right."
"Gimme your hand on it."
The deal was settled. Both the negroes were locked up and held for identification.
When the officer arrived of course he took the negro Thompson had arrested. He was the right man. Cason knew it all the time.
The negro was carried off and convicted. "All right."

The negro was carried off and convicted. When she $50 reward came Thompson stood up to his agreement, and handed over half of it to Cason.

Sometime afterward Cason gave the snap away. Captain Thompson has never appeared to enjoy it.

AUGUSTA, Ga., February 4.-[Special.]-There was a big wreck on the Port Royal and Western Carolina railroad at midnight last night, near Woodlawn, S. C., seventeen miles above Augusta, which has blocked the road Seven loaded cars of the incoming way-freight train from Spartanburg fell through a trestle, a distance of fifteen feet, to the ground below. The locomotive and the first of the train passed over the trestle safely, but the rear portion was precipitated and completely wrecked.

A ROUGH EXPERIENCE. The caboose was the last car, and the wife of Fireman H. L. Taylor, with two young babies, were passengers in the cab, returning home from a visit in Carolina. Mrs. Taylor was badly hurt in the fall. She was thrown one end of the car to the other. Her face was painfully bruised, so swolien that the right eye is completely closed. The babies were jerked about and received bumps on the head. A negro train hand was the only other hurt. He When Fireman received severe injuries. Taylor discovered the accident he, with the engineer, left the locomotive and rushed to save his family. When they returned to the engine they found their cab on fire on the fireman's side, and all of Mr. Taylor's clothes in the seat box were consumed in the blaze. The accident was caused by a car running off the track on the trestle over the bottom lands, cutting the crossties in two, the weight breaking in the piers. It will be a day or two be fore the trestle can be replaced. Until then the passengers are being transferred.

THE CENTRAL WRECK. There was also a big accident on the Central railroad about 1 o'clock this morning, and the Augusta branch of the road has been blocked all day. Two freight cars of the train that left here last night, in running into the sidetrack at Green's Cut, twenty-five miles from here, got uncoupled and ran down the incline. When they struck the switch the cars jumped the rails and fell over on their sides in the cut across the track, blockading the roadway. The passenger train that left here last night for Savannah was not notified of the wreck, and was telescoped by the freight train, smashing the freight cars and badly damaging the locomotive.

NO CONNECTIONS MADE. In consequence of the accident no connections to or from Savannah were made last night or this morning. The night passenger train from here returned to the city at 9 o'clock this morning, unable to pass the wreck The passengers in the sleeper for Savannah were surprised upon waking to find themselves back in Augusta. Conductor Boyce, of the freight train, who was in the cab when the telescope occurred, is reported badly hurt JAY GOULD EXPECTED.

He had been cared for in his declining years by Mr. John A. Lane.

Mayo had married the sister of Lane. Lane, himself, was left an orphan at the age of two years. Mayo and his wife took the child and eared it the same as they would have one of their own, and at his death Mayo willed his property to the said John A. Lane. Now John P. BROTHER AGAINST BROTHER. Will Contest in Washington County

Which Involves $15,000. SANDERSVILLE, Ga., February 4 .- [Special.] contest is now before the courts of Washington county involving an estate worth $15,000. An old lady made a will, leaving her property to one set of children. Afterwards she decided to leave it to another set, and instead of making a second will she had the deeds written, giving a share to each.

Instead of destroying the will she tore it partly across the signature of the witnesses, thinking, no doubt, that she was tearing off her signature, or was destroying the validity of the will. She died about six months ago, and in the bottom of her trunk the will and deeds were found. One set of children claimed the property according to the will; the other. according to the deeds.

The case was before the last superior court of this county, and the jury decided in favor of the will. Those in whose favor the deeds were made out are fighting the case. A number of lawyers have been engaged, and the end is not yet.

has been offered by the Central.

TO RECEIVE JAY GOULD. At today's meeting of the Carolina Central's board of directors, nothing but routine business came up. Colonel C. H. Phinisey, of Augusta, was the only out-of-town member present.

There was nothing said by the board about any change in the management of the road. General Alexander will probably go to Atlanta to meet Mr. John H. Inman and party, and will return with them to Savannah. The condition of the Central railroad is very good. The report of President Alexan ler shows that it needs about 130 miles of new steel for the whole system and five new pas-senger engines—all of which will be supplied during the year. President Alexander this will make the Central system as complete as any system in the country.

The report of the Ocean Steamship Company shows that during the year 1890 the pasenger fares paid on steamers between this port and northern ports, were enough to pay the interest on the bonds of the company. A most remarkable showing. The business of these steamers in passengers and freight has increased enormously. Two new ships are now needed to meet the increase in business and will have to be provided. The company now has ten fine steamships making regular trips between Savannah, Philadelphia, Boston and New York.

The coming of the Gould party was well discussed. General Alexander will take the party up to the Central wharves in the morning. It is his purpose to give the visitors a complete idea of the company's vast facilities for handling traffic. About 1 o'clock, the party will call at the cotton exchange. From Savannah Mr. Gould and his friends will go to Brunswick and thence to Florida.

THE SALOON KEEPERS. The trials and tribulations of the saloo keepers, who disobey the law and keep open on Sunday, will not end with their appearing before Mayor McDonough and the payment of the fine inflicted by him. They will probably have to undergo a second ordeal, this time in the superior court before a jury, and with the prospect of a severejpunishment staring them in the face if convicted. The same evidence that leads to a saloon keeper's conviction in the mayor's court may lead to his conviction in the superior court on the charge of keeping a tippling house open on Sunday. The saloon keepers fear this prosecution much more than they do that before the mayor.

March April May

Are the best months in which to purify your blood, for at no other season does the system so much need the aid of a reliable medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla as now. During the long coid winter, the blood becomes thin and impure, the body becomes weak and tired, the appetite may be lost. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted to purify and enrich the blood, to create a good appetite and to overcome that tired feeling. It increases in popularity every year, for it is the ideal spring medicine.

ATLANTA-WEST END.

THE ANNEXATION QUESTION AND

Places-A Talk with Councilman Hendrix.

The annexation question is now uppermost in the public mind. It is attracting considerable attention in Atlanta, and very general at-

The meeting of the conference committee from the two municipalities is being watched with unusual interest, and everybody wants to know if any agreement will be reached by which West End will annexed.

Such an agreement may be effected. And it may not. The matter has attracted more attention in West End than in Atlanta, and almost everybody in the former municipality has his dea about the terms that ought to be granted by Atlanta if West End is to be annexed. As the annexation can be brought about only by the consent of both parties, it is a matter of interest to know what West End's

The sentiment of the suburb is against ar nexation, unless very favorable terms can be agreed upon. The people there are taxed only at the rate of 50 cents on $100. In Atlanta West End is therefore not eager to increase its taxes by being annexed, and will not do so unless it is made decidedly to its advantage.

The taxable property of West End amounts to $1,411,660. That of Atlanta is $44,136,499. The public debt of Atlanta is $2,216,500. West End not only owes nothing, but its assets exceed its liabilities by about $3,000.

West End has, approximately, $1,500,000 taxable property, is entitled to borrow money to make public improvements to the amount of more than $100,000, the constitutional limtation being 7 per cent on the valuation of the real estate of a municipality.

Thus, while Atlanta has about reached her constitutional limitation in the matter of making loans for improvements, West End has the privilege of issuing bonds to the amount of more than $100,000, which bonds it would have no trouble in placing.

Thus, one of the leading features of the annexation discussion will be the $100,000 which West End is entitled to borrow, and which, it will be insisted, Atlanta should allow her in the terms of agreement.

As to how this equalization shall be effected there is a very general sentiment in West End in favor of having Atlanta agree to exempt West End from an increase of its present rate of taxation for a period sufficient o cover the difference above noted."

If this can be brought about there seems to be no doubt but that the annexation question can be settled favorably. but unless such a concession is made it is probable that Atlanta will not get West End, and that the latter municipality will at once issue bonds and pro eed at once to work on permanent improve ments, on its own accord.

Of course, there are other features of secondary importance that will be pressed by the West Enders, but Atlanta seems to be willing to meet the question in the fair spirit.

Councilman Hendrix Has Views.

Captain J. S. Hendrix has made a study of he annexation question, and yesterday gave his conclusions at some length.

"I have always thought," said Captain Hendrix, "that it would be the best thing for West End to become a part of the city of Atlanta. Think of the beautiful country in and around West End. Nature seems to have lavishly bestowed her gifts on that section. It is the most elevated section around Atlanta, is level, with easy approaches, indeed, ought to have been the most fashionable and best residence portion of Atlanta. Yet, with all these natural advantages, West End has not kept pace with other sections possessing equal advan-

"And the reason is—"
"The reason is apparent. The system of public improvements of Atlanta could not be carried into West End, and West End could carried into West End, and West End could not inaugurate such a system as would bring the two systems together so as to make them continuous. Look at north Atlanta with natural advantages not so good. The same distance from the carshed property on the main streets like Peachtree, West Peachtree, Ponce de Leon and the Boulevard is selling at from $100 to $200 per front foot, while I do not know of any unimproved residence property in West End selling for more than $50 per front foot. Now look at Inman park—they hesitated about coming in, but since coming in their property has doubled in value and the park is now becoming one of the finest residence sections of Atlanta."

"Objection is made on the ground of Atlanta's debt."

"West End claims that Atlanta has a large west End claims that Atlanta has a large public debt and that they have practically none. That is true. Atlanta has a public debt of almost $2,100,000, but she has public property worth about an equal amount. So after all we are about equal on that score. While West End has no debt she has no pub-

While West End has no debt she has no public property, or very little.

"Take our public property. There is our waterworks, land, plant and system of pipes throughout the city, that would readily sell for $1,000,000. We have seventeen public schools, including the girls' and boys' high school, that the school board report as worth $320,000. We have six fire engine houses and lots that would sell for $150,000. The engines, trucks, horses and other apparatus, are worth $50,000. The police station property would sell for $50,000. Our stockade farm of 100 acres would sell for $100,000. Our land used for a dumping ground would sell for $20,000. Grant park, while not saleable, is valuable, and would be as much so to West End as to Atlanta—145 acres, worth $300,000. Leaving out all the sanitary outfit, street out

Leaving out all the sanitary outfit, street outfit, police outfit, etc., we have an aggregate of $1,990,000. In fact, Atlanta's public property

$1,990,000. In fact, Atlanta's public property today is worth more than $2,000,000, not to mention our large outlay in streets, sewers, etc.

"These questions, no doubt, will suggest themselves to the joint committee when they meet, as all of them are discreet business men. I regard it a just thing, and if West End comes in give her a fair showing in the transaction and then let Atlanta press her into the position she naturally has. Then in a few years what is now West End will be the best residence part of our city.

"I am enthusiastic over the outlook for Atlanta, and with the march of progress that I lants, and with the march of progress that I think I see, it will be but a few years until Atlanta will be twice the present size."

plea for reciprocity with the south were cheered to the echo."

The same paper gives the following report of the introduction of Governor Bullock by President Lane and of the governor's speech:

"Before presenting to you my friend, the President of the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta," said Mr. Lane, "I desire to say that I was once invited to speak before that body. The banquet commenced at about 10 o'clock, and I think the speaking commenced about midnight. About 3:30 of 40 clock in the morning your humble servant made some remarks, and was followed by other speakers. Therefore, you can see the courage of our friends in Atlanta, and I may say incidentally that we were as fresh as larks the next morning. We went to a reception that evening, and I have to say of that place that the bospitality of the gentlemen and the beauty of the ladice are equally unsurpassable. [Applause.]

"I have the honor to now present to you Hon. Rufus B. Bullock, the president of the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta, Ga., ex-governor of the state of Georgia, and one of the representatives of the United States in the directorship of the Union Pacific railway." [Applause and three cheers for "Governor Bullock of Georgia."]

Ex-Governor Bullock spoke as follows:
"Mr. President and Gentiemen: The invitation to be with you tonight was received with grateful appreciation. To meet with a Boston merchant is always an honor. To join with them assembled for their annual feast is a great privilege. The merchants of Boston have set the pace from the time of the "tea party" to the present day, and fortunate is the section that follows their example.

that I was remembered and am with you tonight, this telegram from your chairman, "Can you give us about fifteen minutes talk, favoring reciproc-ity or against free silver?" alarmed me and may discouracy you is about fifteen minutes talk, favoring reciprocity or against free silver? alarmed me and may discourage you.

"In the shadow of the great disaster which has fallen upon the country in the death of the secretary of the treasury, we stand appalled. But the complete exposition of these questions which he gave in his speech last night—a message to the country which he lay down his life to deliver—will go far toward bringing the public mind to correct conclusions. In my opinion, the commercial and trade organizations throughout the country can honor the dead and do a service to their fellow-citizens by causing a printed copy of the secretary's last words to be placed in the hands of every man, woman and child in their respective communities.

"I am not against free coinage, provided the imprint of our united sovereignty is stamped upon a dollar's worth of silver.

"The plous announcement now imprinted above the eagle on our dollar will not be accepted by the whole people as sufficient security for the missing quantity of pure metal.

"If the coin is intended, however, as a token, representing the promise of all the people, it can as well be stamped on paper, and will be universally accepted at its face value, because the property of all the people would be pledged for its payment.

"I may say still further that if it is wise and

"I may say still further that if it is wise and "I may say still further that if it is wise and constitutional for the government to encourage the mining of silver by purchasing that product, then the same encouragement should be extended to other industries, not the least of which is the mining of iron and coal and the raising of cotton. "I apprehend, however, that the sober second thought of the American people will not approve as a permanent policy of a system which makes the treasury of the United States a clearing house for any kind of marketable commodities. "Reciprocity, in its largest sense, is the exchange of products and fabrics between the people of different nations, under such conditions as to be mutally beneficial; but until the lines of division existing between nations are obliterated, and the tally beneficial; but until the lines of division existing between nations are obliterated, and the whole world becomes as one, each government must carefully guard and protect the best interests of its own people.

"This subject cannot be determined upon sentimental considerations, but must be controlled by the stern logic of dollars and cents.

"The present is not an opportune moment, nor is there time to array statistics of trade in support of the policy of reciprocity, but it may be well to call attention to the fact that trade, advantageous to the United States, cannot be secured unless we first provide for carriage in American ships at sea and encourage easier communication with our neighbors by the construction of canals and railroads. Facilities for transportotion and communing have always preceded the exchange of contract of the community of the contract of

tion have always preceded the exchange of commodities.

"The reciprocal trade between the people of the differant sections of the United States is complete, and is the result of government aid, both state and national, in stimulating the construction of facilities for transportation throughout the length and breadth of our land.

"Contrast the narrow limits of trade in colonial days with the present, and the picture is complete. The same policy, applied to providing facilities for foreign trade would result in equal benefit, and I trust the influence of this magnificent body of business men will be exerted in that direction.

"Pardon me, Mr. President and Gentlemen, for a word more. We need here in our own country reciprocity of confidence and good feeling among all our people. Reciprocal respect for the opinions—prejudices, if you please—of fellow-citizens. Force is necessary to command respect from other nations, but is a poor substitute for friendly council and good will among our own people at home.

"While we cultivate friendly relations with all nations, let it be the individual effort of every American to throw the mantle of charity overwhat may seem to him to be the shortcomings of his fellow-citizen."

THE QUESTIONS INVOLVED. The Situation as Viewed by Citizens of Both Places-A Talk with Councilman

The annexation question is now uppermos in the public mind. It is attracting considerable attention in Atlanta, and very general attention in West End

The meeting of the conference committees from the two municipalities is being watched with unusual interest, and everybody wants to know if any agreement will be reached by which West End will annexed.

Such an agreement may be effected.

And it may not.

The matter has attracted more attention in West End than in Atlanta, and almost everybody in the former municipality has his idea about the terms that ought to be granted by Atlanta if West End is to be annexed. As the annexation can be brought about only by the consent of both parties, it is a matter of interest to know what West End's The sentiment of the suburb is against annexation, unless very favorable terms can be agreed upon. The people there are taxed only at the rate of 50 cents on $100. In Atlanta the municipal tax is three times as much. West End is therefore not eager to increase its taxes by being annexed, and will not do so unless it is made decidedly to its advantage. The taxable property of West End am to $1,411,660. That of Atlanta is $44,136,499. The public debt of Atlanta is $2,216,500.

West End not only owes nothing, but its ssets exceed its liabilities by about $3,000. West End has, approximately, $1,500,000 taxable property, is entitled to borrow money to make public improvements to the amount of more than $100,000, the constitutional limitation being 7 per cent on the valuation of the real estate of a municipality.

Thus, while Atlanta has about reached her constitutional limitation in the matter of making loans for improvements, West End has the privilege of issuing bonds to the amount of more than $100,000, which bonds it would have no trouble in placing.

Thus, one of the leading features of the anon discussion will be the $100,000 which West End is entitled to borrow, and which, it will be insisted, Atlanta should allow her in the terms of agreement.

As to how this equalization shall be effected there is a very general sentiment in West End in favor of having Atlanta agree to exempt West End from an increase present rate of taxation for a period sufficient cover the difference above noted."

If this can be brought about there seems to can be settled favorably. but unless such a concession is made it is probable that Atlanta will not get West End, and that the latter municipality will at once issue bonds and proceed at once to work on permanent improve ments, on its own accord.

Of course, there are other features of secondary importance that will be pressed by the West Enders, but Atlanta seems to be willing to meet the question in the fair spirit.

Captain J. S. Hendrix has made a study of the annexation question, and yesterday gave his conclusions at some length.

"I have always thought," said Captain Hendrix, "that it would be the best thing for West End to become a part of the city of Atlanta. Think of the beautiful country in and around West End. Nature seems to have lavishly bestowed her gifts on that section. It is the most elevated section around Atlanta, is level, with easy approaches, indeed, ought to have been the most fashionable and best residence portion of Atlanta. Yet, with all these natural advantages. West End has not kept pace with other sections possessing equal advan-

"And the reason is—"
"The reason is apparent. The system of public improvements of Atlanta could not be carried into West End, and West End could not inaugurate such a system as would bring the two systems togother so as to make them continuous. Look at north Atlants with natural advantages not so good. The same distance from the carshed property on the main streets like Peachtree, West Peachtree, Ponce de Leon and the Boulevard is selling at from $100 to $200 per front foot, while I do not know of any unimproved residence property in West End selling for more than $50 per front foot. Now look at Inman park—they hesiwest End seiling for more than $50 per front foot. Now look at Inman park—they hesitated about coming in, but since coming in their property has doubled in value and the park is now becoming one of the finest residence sections of Atlanta."

"Objection is made on the ground of Atdence sections of Atlanta."

"Objection is made on the ground of Atlanta's debt."

"West End claims that Atlanta has a large public debt and that they have practically none. That is true. Atlanta has a public debt of almost $2,100,000, but she has public property worth about an equal amount. So after all we are about equal on that score. While West End has no debt she has no public property, or very little.

"Take our public property. There is our waterworks, land, plant and system of pipes throughout the city, that would readily sell for $1,000,000. We have seventeen public schools, including the girls' and boys' high school, that the school board report as worth $320,000. We have six fire engine houses and lots that would sell for $150,000. The engines, trucks, horses and other apparatus, are worth $50,000. The police station property would sell for $50,000. The police station property would sell for $50,000. Grant park, while not saleable, is valuable, and would be as much so to West End as to Atlanta—145 acres, worth $300,000.

is valuable, and would be as much so to West End as to Atlanta—145 acres, worth $300,000. Leaving out all the sanitary outfit, street outfit, police outfit, etc., we have an aggregate of $1,990,000. In fact, Atlanta's public property today is worth more than $2,000,000, not to mention our large outlay in streets, sewers, etc. "These questions, no doubt, will suggest themselves to the joint committee when they meet, as all of them are discreet business men. I regard it a just thing, and if West End comes in give her a fair showing in the transaction and then let Atlanta press her into the position she naturally has. Then in a few years what is now West End will be the best residence part of our city. "I am enthusiastic over the outlook for Atlanta, and with the march of progress that I think I see, it will be but a few years until Atlanta will be twice the present size."

Atlanta will be twice the present size. RECIPBOCITY AND FREE SILVER.

Governor Bullock's Views as Expressed at the Merchants' Bauquet in Boston. In its description of the recent Merchants' banquet in Boston, the Globe says of ex-Governor Bullock, one of the distinguished speakers of the evening:

"Nex', on the right of Sir Richard I. Cartwright, the financial leader of the Liberal party of the Canadian dominion sat Hon. Rufus B. Bul-wright, the financial leader of the Liberal party of the Canadian dowinion sat Hoa. Rufus B. Bullock, ex-governor of Georgia and president of the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta. He is a typical southerner with a long, drooping, white mustache. His plea for an honest dollar, without any "In God we trust for the missing silver," and his plea for reciprocity with the south were cheered to the echo."

The same paper gives the following report of the introduction of Governor Bullock by President Lane and of the governor's speech:
"Before presenting to you my friend, the President of the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta," said Mr. Lane, "I desire to say that I was once invited to speak before that body. The banquet commenced at about 10 o'clock, and I think the speaking commenced about midnight. About 3:30 or 4 o'clock in the morning your humble servant made some remarks, and was followed by other speakers. Therefore, you can see the courage of our friends in Atlanta, and I may say incidentally that we were as fresh as larks the next morning. We went to a reception that evening, and I have to say of that place that the hospitality of the gentlemen and the beauty of the ladies are equally unsurpassable. [Applause.]
"I have the honor to now present to you Hon. Bufus B. Bullock, the president of the Chamber of Commerce of Atlanta, Ga., ex-governor of the state of Georgia, and one of the representatives of the United States in the directorship of the Union Pacific railway." (Applause and three cheers for "Governor Bullock of Georgia." Ex-Governor Bullock of Georgia." Ex-Governor Bullock spoke as follows:

"Mr. President and Gentlemen: The invitation to be with you tonight was received with grateful appreciation. To meet with a Boston merchant is always an honor. To join with them assembled for their annual feast is a great privilege. The merchants of Boston have set the pace from the time of the "tea party" to the present day, and fortunate is the section that follows their example.

fortunate is the section that follows their example.

"While I am proud and thankful, Mr. President, that I was remembered and am with you tonight, this telegram from your chairman, 'Can you give us about fitteen minutes talk, favoring reciprocity or against free silver?' alarmed me and may discourage you.

"In the shadow of the great disaster which has fallen upon the country in the death of the secretary of the treasury, we stand appailed. But the complete exposition of these questions which he gave in his speech last night—a message to the country which he lay down his life to deliver—will go far toward bringing the public mind to correct conclusions. In my opinion, the commercial and trade organizations throughout the country can honor the dead and do a service to their fellow-citizens by cansing a printed copy of the secretary's last words to be placed in the hands of every man, woman and child in their respective communities.

"I am not against free coinage, provided the imprint of our united sovereignty is stamped upon a doilar's worth of silver.

"The pious announcement now imprinted above the eagle on our doilar will not be accepted by the whole people as sufficient security for the missing quantity of pure metal.

"If the coiln is intended, however, as a token, the eagle on our dollar will not be accepted by the whole people as sufficient security for the missing quantity of pure metal.

"If the coin is intended, however, as a token, representing the promise of all the people, it can as well be stamped on paper, and will be universally accepted at its face value, because the property of all the people would be pledged for its payment.

"I may say still further that if it is wise and constitutional for the government to encourage the mining of silver by purchasing that product, then the same encouragement should be extended to other industries, not the least of which is the mining of iron and coal and the raising of cotton.
"I apprehend, however, that the sober second thought of the American people will not approve as a permanent policy of a system which makes the treasury of the United States a clearing house for any kind of marketable commodities.
"Reciprocity, in its largest sense, is the exchange of products and fabrics between the people of different nations, under such conditions as to be mutally beneficial; but until the lines of division existing between nations are obliterated, and the whole world becomes as one, each government must carefully guard and protect the best interests of its own people.

"This subject cannot be determined upon sentimental considerations, but must be controlled by the stern logic of dollars and cents.
"The present is not an opportune moment, nor is there time to array statistics of trade in support of the policy of reciprocity, but it may be well to call attention to the fact that trade, advantageous to the United States, cannot be secured unless we first provide for carriage in American ships at sea and encourage easier communication with our neighbors by the construction of canals and railroads.

"Facilities for transportotion and communica-"I may say still further that if it is wise and "Facilities for transportation and common have always preceded the exchange of oddities.

tion have always preceded the exchange of commodities.

"The reciprocal trade between the people of the differant sections of the United States is complete, and is the result of government aid, both state and national, in stimulating the construction of facilities for transportation throughout the length and breadth of our land.

"Contrast the narrow limits of trade in colonial days with the present, and the picture is complete. The same policy, applied to providing facilities for foreign trade would result in equal benefit, and I trust the influence of this magnificent body of business men will be exerted in that direction.

"Pardon me, Mr. President and Gentlemen, for a

"Pardon me, Mr. President and Gentlemen, for a word more. We need here in our own country reciprocity of confidence and good feeling among all our people. Reciprocal respect for the opinions—prejudices, if you please—of fellow-citizens. Force is necessary to command respect from other nations, but is a poor substitute for friendly council and good will among our own people at home.

"While we cultivate friendly relations with all nations, let it be the individual effort of every American to throw the mantle of charity over what may seem to him to be the shortcomings of his fellow-citizen."

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, February 5.—The stock market continued to show great strength today and reversed the temper of yesterday (completely, while there was an increased volume of business, though the aggregate is still small. Buying today was apparently from Vanderbilt and Gould sources, but there are rumors of pools in several stocks, among which St. Paul and Lake Shore were conspicuous and both made handsome advances today, the latter being helped materially by the report of its earnings for the fourth week in January. Other specially strong stocks today were ry. Other specially strong stocks today were wanna, Wheeling and Lake Erie and Pacific Mail in general line, while among the specialties there were some large gains made, Jersey Central, Delaware and Hudson, Edison General Electric and Great Northern preferred being especially prominent. The market opened with a firm tone, but remained dull except for those stocks which had an advantage of a clique support, but a stronger tone developed and late in the day an poward movement became more pronounced all through the list. Outside of St. Paul and the lead trust, however, there was not at any time any activity. The long expected declaration of a dividend in the lead trust came today and was a great disappointment to many who have been expecting one of I Mail in general line, while among the specialties there ment to many who have been expecting one of cent, whereas the dividend was only & of 1 per per cent, whereas the dividend was only ½ of 1 per cent. Upon this there was heavy selling by disappointed speculators and this neutralized buying, which was indulged in by those who have been waiting for a dividend or other good news before purchasing. The stock market gained only a small fraction in early trading, but lost all improvements later in the day, with something in addition. Other industries were effected to a large extent, and the material advance made in sugar stocks in the forenoon was entirely lost. The market showed an increased strength as the day were along outside of industrials and, while there was as usual some realization in the last hour upon adsual some realization in the last hour upon ad-ces scored, there was no setback and the close while quiet was strong at the best figures of the day nost invariably higher. NEW YORK, February 4.—We have had a strong nparatively active market today, and price closed at quite an advance, and in some instances higher than they had been since the recent great dehigher than they had been since the recent great de-pression. The street is gradually taking the bullish utterances of the great speculators to heart, and, strange to say, it is just those houses who have been usually identified with the bear side of the market who now seem to be carrying the heaviest lines of stocks, even the granger stocks, which have comparatively few friends, are feeling the effect of the [general increase in hopeful mess and scored a substantial advance today. There is no doubt that the recent buyers are our strongest and most courageous leaders and we do not think they will be satisfied with a mere turn. They have bought these stocks with the full knowledge that railroad earnings stocks with the full knowledge that railroad earnings for the next three months would be poor, and they are not likely to liquidate them until better, times have set in and higher prices ensue, and we believe that such of r friends as will have the pluck to hold stock bought at present prices through a period of several months of bad earnings, they will reap large profits for their endurance. Lake Shore continues the most pronounced feature in the trading, and the buying of this seems more of the investment kind than speculative. For a speculator we confess we see but small margin in buying a 6 per cent stock at 112, unless a period of great rity were to be in store for the trunk lines. The prosperity were to be in store in confirmation of the Northern Pacifics were buoyant in confirmation of the report that the company had negotiated the balance of its bonds on its Chicago terminals and would thus be the most money will be made in the immediate future in spite of the especially improved prospects of the stock market. Cahn & Co.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, February 4.—(Special.)—The looked for reaction in Liverpool occurred today, arrivals advancing 2@3 points, closing steady with a portion of the gain lost. It is reported here that a reaction was stimulated by reduced crop estimates, though it is difficult to understand upon what foundation a reduction in crop estimates is based. Our market responded but feebly to the advance in Liverpool, closing dull at about last evening's quotations. The small fuctuations during the day were largely the result of the operations of a local operator, and are without significance as affecting the course of prices. A general indisposition is shown to force prices to a parity with Liverpool values, though the advices from Manchester are of a decidedly unfavorable character, and the falling off in demand for export is causing an accumulation of stocks in the large interior towns instead of a decrease, as is usual at this season of the year. Receipts at the ports are lighter than anticipated, while the receipts at the interior towns today are 4,500 bales, against 2,500 bales last season, and the movement now points to a plantation movement largely in excess of 1850. By many, however, the price is thought to discount the large crop and the bad trade advices received from Manchester, and the buying by those who hold this opinion is sufficient to absorb the cotton offering here for delivery on southern account.

By Private Wire to Younghlood & Hans.

NEW YORK, February 4.—Liverpool opened quick and steady, but during the day improved to the extent of 2-84d, closing easy at a partial decline from the best. Our market was not infuenced by the foreign advices at all—in fact, if anything the tone was disappointing. The business throughout the day has been nominal and the fluctuations carely covered a few points. There is an evident indecision on the part of traders, who are apparently adverse to taking the large chance on the short side any more, while the outside buying played no part whatever in the day's doings. The movement was just about what was expected and had no bearing on prices whatever. The market closes quiet and steady at almost bottom figures.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, February 4.—Cold weather and easier ca-bles caused, at the opening, a general desire to sell at the price ruling at the close yesterday. The bulk of the first trading was done at from 99\(\frac{\pi}{n} \) 100. An at-tempt of some of the local shorts to cover their pre-vious sales was perceived by the local scalpers, and they bid the price up. There was a quick advance to 100\(\frac{\pi}{n} \), a reaction to 100\(\frac{\pi}{n} \) and these fluctuations were followed by a bulke, and 101\(\frac{\pi}{n} \) and these the creations. 100%, a reaction to 100% and these fluctuations were followed by a bulge, and 101½ was paid before the excited traders stopped to draw breath. The price was around 100½ 000% when a dispatch from San Francisco reported good general rains in California and Oregon. These rains extinguished the bullish conflagration then raging in the wheat pit, and the advance was wiped out, and May wheat sold down to 99%c and closed at 91½c, or ½c lower than it-rested yesterday. Light receipts were sufficient in their influence to Light receipts were sufficient in their influence to orn from declining. The opening price for May was 53%c, and there was one sale at 54c. The lowest price was 51% and the closing figure 53% c.
Oats opened dull and continued so until the bulge in wheat, when the minor cereals showed a slight advance. Trading was only fair, however, at a range of %c.

The provision market was weak at the start, and May pork was soon selling at $10.02\%, though $10.10 was paid immediately at the opening. Business was rather quiet, with packers selling on hard spots and covering shorts on declines the chief feature.

CHICAGO, February 4 .- The cold weather in the inter wheat belt from Arkansas to Ohio, coming so addenly after the long spell of mild weather and finding the ground bare in a greater part of the entire region, caused a slight firmness at about the opening of gion, caused a slight firmness at about the opening of the market this morning, but the market showed no strength or activity until the report of the Russian crop of 1890, figuring 199,009,909 bushel, although this was old news it being the lightest crop for a number of years and Bradstreet's estimate of a decrease of over 2,000,000 in the available supply on both coasts pre-vented all further selling by parties who anticipated a decline to about 93 cents. Then the few orders which came to buy gradually strengthened the market cause ame to buy gradually strengthened the market causing an advance to 101. Then came reports from San Francisco that they were having liberal rains in the wheat region which caused all local trades to sell out their long wheat or put out a small line on the short side for a turn and the market being very narrow de-clined rapidly to the close which was somewhat lower than yesterday, the result of the day being a sort of scalping market without any special feature or ten-

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 5, 1891.

A Georgian's Good Work. The action of the Alabama legislature in deciding not to make an appropriation for a state exhibit at the Chicago world's fair, in the event of the passage of the force bill, was a timely master stroke. It will interest many of our readers to learn that the author of the resolution referred to was Senator John T. Milner, formerly of Georgia, a native of Pike county. Mobile and Montgomery papers, in their enthusiastic commendation of Senator Milner's cause, state that he is a progressive citizen, who represents the wealthiest mining district in Alabama, a district in which more foreign capital is invested than in all rest of the state. He has always been a strong friend of immigration, and has written more than one book setting forth the resources of his district.

Under all the circumstances, it was a courageous thing for a man so situated to take the hold stand he hid. Just at the right moment Senator Milner moved that the bill making an appropriation for an exhibit at the world's fair be laid on the table without reference. In giving his reasons he said that he could not recommend Alabama to seat herself around the festive board at Chicago with her sister states, if the passage of the force bill should place the federal brand of infamy upon her brow. He reminded his hearers that once before-in 1875 -when the state had arranged to take part in the centennial exposition at Philadelphia, a force bill was taken up in congress. The Alabama legislature was then in session, and delayed action on the appropriation for the exposition until the danger was over. He urged the legislature to stand by the precedent of 1875.

Senator Milner's resolution went through with a rush, and the Alabama papers are not yet done congratulating him. Georgia, and especially Pike county, feel that they have a share in this business. This patriotic Georgian's good work in fighting the force bill at long range had a good effect, and will not soon be forgotten.

Republican Arguments.

An army officer who is a republican, and who was stationed in the south during the reconstruction period, after having served with the union forces throughout the war. writes to The Boston Herald to say that the force bill will cause trouble in the south. He predicts that bloodshed will be the result of its operations, and that troops would have to be called for.

This is a gloomy view, but the point of it is really an argument in favor of the force bill from a republican standpoint. Recently The New York Tribune reviewed all the arguments offered against the force bill, and proceeded to show that every objection which had been advanced is a reason why the bill should be passed.

The prediction of bloodshed by the officer. who writes to The Herald is likely, therefore, to make the republican sectionalists hungrier for the bill than ever. The situation at the south is not at all pleasing to these partisans. There is too little trouble here. The relations between the races are too friendly and promising to please them. There is nothing in the situation on which to base a bloody shirt campaign. If the force bill will be the means of bringing about bloodshed to an extent that will justify a call for troops, the problems of an unpromising campaign will be solved for the republicans by the enactment of that measure. We are not of the opinion that the force bill enacted into a law would result in bloodshed in the south, but it would disturb the present friendly and hopeful relations between the whites and the blacks, and renew the unpleasant episodes that characterize race prejudice. The worst effect of the bill would be on the business interests of the south, and these it would affect fatally.

This fact is also an argument calculated to cause the republican bourbons to regret that the bill is not a law. The organs of that party having, as it seemed, the ear of the world, have been for years endeavoring to prevent capitalists from investing in southern enterprises, and warning immigrants, both American and foreign, not to come here for the purpose of making this section their home. That they have succeeded in delaying and postponing the industrial development of the south to some extent we have no sort of doubt, but their influence has n dissipated. Their venom has spent its force, and they have done their worst. The south is today advancing more rapidly than any other section has ever advanced in the history of the country.

This is another republican argument in favor of the force bill.

Sherman on Pensions.

In his recent talk with George Alfred Townsend, which was reported in our news columns, John Sherman attempted to take what is termed in the country papers of Ohio "statesmanlike view of the situation." He discussed every question that came into his head and some of them in a very slipshod manner. We have already referred to and commented on some of his remaks, especially the small consolation he gave the farmers.

When Senator Sherman had his talk with Gath, the candidacy of Ingalls was pending ore the Kansas legislature. Sherman alnded to this fact while endorsing the penon legislation of the republicans-legislation that has been pushed through, not for the benefit of the soldiers, but for the benefit of the pension agents at Washington. erman declared that the people were ehind the republican party and in favor of n, and he declared that "the on of Senator Ingalis, in sustaining the

The result seems to indicate that the soldiers are not as loudly in favor of this extravagant pension legislation as Senator Sherman supposes. The attitude of Ingalls nade no difference to the old soldier elenent in Kansas, and he was defeated in pite of it. Yet Kansas is one of the strong st Union states in the country.

Mr. Sherman and the rest of the repub lican politicians are mistaken about the old oldier element. The old soldiers who fought for the union are not mercenaries, and they are not in favor of bankrupting the treasury in order that pension agents may have fat

Politics and Business.

Sometimes politics and business in this country are very intimately connected.

For several months past the policy of the epublican party has seriously disturbed finance, industry and commerce. It is only since it has become apparent that the sec tional programme agreed upon by the partisans of the administration cannot be carried out that the outlook has brightened. Still, the real work of reform is as yet untouched. McKinleyism has its grip upon the throat of the republic. The workingmen, the farmers, the masses find the cost of living 15 per cent higher than it was six months ago. The financial system of the government is as oppressive as ever. We are to pay out in pensions this year more money than it costs to maintain the largest standing army in

All this is bad enough, and we need not proceed with the enumeration of our burns. A glance at the bright side will now be in order. The defeats and disappointments of the administration and its partisans point to the triumph of democracy and reform in 1892. The wreckers have found that it is well nigh impossible to ruin the republic. Time and again the people have shown that they can be trusted. When parties become corrupt the people rise and smash them. They have done it more than once in our history, and they are getting ready to do it again. Undoubtedly, the hopeful political prospect is largely responsible for the improved business situation. Capitalists no longer dread another crusade against the south, and they feel that no region on earth can offer them more profitable investments. Within a few weeks all talk of a panic has died out; money is more abundant and cheaper; there is less speculation and greater activity in solid investments, and the volume of business is rapidly swelling. With the excepception of the iron industry everything is more prosperous, and the certain resumption of railway construction, and the equally certain activity in building operations will soon give iron a stronger tone.

Now that the last lingering dread of federal interference with the south is dispelled the wonderful progress she has made in the last two decades will receive a new impetus. The tide of immigration will set this way, and capital and enterprise will seek our attractive fields. The next generation will see in this section a bewildering rush of rapid development never paralleled except in certain localities in the west. We are just entering upon an era of material magic -no other phrase will express it-never dreamed of by our fathers. There are men now living who will see the south the richest section of the union—the richest in agriculture, manufactures, commerce, railroads;

the richest in money and in credit. Some hint of this has influenced even the republicans. When the test came some of their wisest leaders were unwilling to strike a blow at the new El Dorado looming up before them. Revolutions in politics and business are sometimes very speedily wrought The dazzling potentialities held out by southern development are beginning to wipe out sectionalism. All over the north there is a growing desire on the part of big capitalists. men with small fortunes, manufacturers, traders, farmers and speculators, to get their share of our coming prosperity. This feeling will grow stronger, and will overthrow bitter partisans, modify political platforms and lead to a reform in our financial system that will favor instead of hamper the rising south in her new career. If these opinions and predictions do not naturally grow out of the facts of the case, then we have made a mistake that is shared by many of the clearest-headed and most far-seeing business men and statesmen in Europe and in America. But we do not believe that there is a single mistake in these lines, nor between them, and we run no risk in saying that the next year will bear out this view; the next five years will prove it, and the next ten years will find every man in the country swearing that he always knew and always predicted that the south would come to the head of the procession. Paste this in your hat!

Not a Sectionalist.

The partisan republican organs, now that Ingalls is defeated, have been trying to get a little consolation out of the result by referring to the fact that Mr. Pfeffer, the senator-elect, is a republican. Some of the organs have even gone so far as to pat the new senator on the back.

There are some important facts that the sectionalists forget, which it is our pleasure to remind them of, namely-that the leaven of the alliance has been working among the republicans of Kansas; that the men who were formerly republicans have suddenly had their eyes opened to the fact that their policy is wholly bad; that their minds have been broadened by the knowledge of the fact that they can stand on practically the same platform with the democratic farmers of the south; and that Mr. Ingalls was defeated because he is a republican sectionalist. It is true, he tried to redeem himself at the last moment, but his whole record is against him.

The hope of the organs that Senator-elect Pfeffer, notwithstanding the fact that he is elected on the alliance platform, will vote with the republicans on all party questions is not likely to materialize. In the first place the alliance organization is a thoroughly non-sectional organization, and it has already effected great good among that element of the republican party which has heretofore stood for all that was narrow and bigoted in politics. The alliance has opened the eyes of the republican farmers in the west on a good many subjects. It has taken their minds out of the old ruts and given them new and pressing issues to think ortant. "Every effort to sectional feeling, he says, "will meet my vigorous protest." It is the thing that has ood most in the way of the advent of onomic reform." What he says about the race issue, or the negro question, the force bill is based, is particularly interesting. Here it is: race issue is for the southern people to set-nong themselves. If we had it in Kansas we side. It is not ent interference from ou are face to face with its difficulties about the let alone in their methods of dealing with it. I have lived in a southern community, and I know what the problem is. Let it alone, and the two races will problem is. problem is. An Able Statesman.

The duke of Bedford, who died the other day, deserves more than a passing notice. That he was an able statesman few will deny. He sat in the house of commons twenty-five years, and never made a speech. Then he went to the house of lords, where he remained eighteen years, without saying a word.

A parliamentary career of forty-three years passed in profound silence! But he was an able statesman-able, useful and honored. What kind of ability did he possess? The most potential-his estate covered 118 acres in the city of London. He owned about 3,000 residences and business It has been said that a very little wit goes a long way with an emperor, and it is equally true that a very little thought, speech and work will go a long way with a millionaire. The duke was a power in himself. Why should he speak, when his frown, his nod, his smile, his look did more to shape legislation and move society than the eloquence of a Sheridan?

Statesmen and common mortals watched this plutocrat for the slightest sign, and were eager to do his bidding. Brains were enlisted in his service, and the results showed ability somewhere, and the fountain head, after all, was the duke. He could scowl down a bill, or nod it through by a good majority. Was not this ability of a very rare order?

When the duke died he left orders for his body to be cremated. Perhaps the thought had struck him that as a public man he had always been too cold. Finding that he had no fire in him-not a spark-he wisely decided that, if he could not throw any heat into his carcass, he would throw himself into

QUAY STILL leads and the republican party

Mr. HARRISON should not forget that Mr Windom's successor should have the conf dence of the Wall-street speculators.

IF BROTHER BLAINE really intends to lead the republican party out of the wilderness, it is time he was ringing up the curtain. SPEAKER REED thinks he is helping the president by suppressing the free coinage bill. This is not the first time Mr. Reed has made serious mistake. Some of the figures of the census of 1880 still remain unpublished. It is to be hoped that Mr. Porter is not too English in his ways to beat this record. MR. EDWARD ATKINSON is a very abl man, but what he doesn't know about the views of the people on the silver question would fill twenty volumes as big as the Century dictionary. MR. EDWARD ATKINSON and The New York World have come to the conclusion that there is no popular demand for free coinage. This reminds us of the position of the colored preacher who argued that the earth do move because he can't see it move.

That Industrial School.

ATLANTA, Ga., February 2.—Editor Constitu-tion: In this morning's issue of your paper I was delighted to read a letter from Eliza A. Bowen, concerning the election of a principal or president for the Industrial School for Girls at Milledgeville. Miss Bowen requests the women of At-lanta to express their opinion as to whether it is right for a man to be appointed to fill that rensible position, to the exclusion of a woman, who is just as well or better qualified for it. As a woman who believes in equal rights before the law, and everywhere else, for that matter, I may not be regarded as "responsible" by Miss Bowen, who disclaims any desire to vote or hold office, and "is opposed to everything of the kind." I "am a southern woman of the old school, and am proud a southern woman of the old school, and am proud of it," but, I think I am also a citizen, and have been deprived of my constitutional rights, as a citizen, by men. long enough and never intend to say I am connent until I secure equal rights before the law.

I do not think women should be content to endure the placing of men at the head of everything, just because they are men, and especially over a school of girls. It is another reflection on the mothers of the land. No man has asked me by write my opinion, because men haven't an the mothers of the land. No man has asked me to write my opinion, because men haven't an exaited opinion of a woman who dares to say she favors woman's suffrage. Like Mother Wailace, I am getting too old, and have been married too long, to care much for their opinions.

Early in the year of 1888, my mind and heart were profoundly stirred with a great desire to do something for the girls of Georgia, and having been promised the aid and co-operation of one of our most prominent legislators before he left our city for the winter, I proceeded with the aid and co-operation of the Woman's Christian Tempetance Union, of Atlanta, to send petitions all over the state to be signed by the people who favored the establishment by the to send petitions all over the state to be signed by the people who favored the establishment by the state of an industrial institute and college for girls. I have never been able to see why any distinction should be made by parents or the government in the matter of providing facilities for the education and general welfare of the sons, to the exclusion of the daughters, and I shought if Missispipi could build her daughters such a magnificent institution as her industrial institute and college at Columbus, why could not Georgia, the Empire State of the south, do likewise; and noble Henry Grady thought so too, and did all he could to help us in our efforts to persuade the men in power to be as just and as generous to the girl-hood of the commonwealth, as they have been to the boys.

hood of the commonwealth, as may have been to the boys.

We knew we were not asking too much; it was only just that one college should be given to the girls, when the boys have five, all presided over by men. My interest has never abated in the welfare of this "one ewe lamb," although it failed to be placed in Atlanta, the garden spot of Georgia; and when I learned that there was a probability of a man being placed at its head, I felt that I must raise my feeble and uninfluential voice in protest.

If all the women whom I know feet as Miss Bowen and I do on this subject will only tell our good alliance, Prohibition Governor Northen and the trustees of the girls' school how we think of the matter, I am quite sure they will listen to the prayer of the better half of the people, who cannot, it is true, hurt or help them by voting for or receipts them. I am quite sure they will not denot, it is true, burt or help them by voting for or against them. I am quite sure they will not de-liver the gris to the tender (7) mercies of a man overseer. It would be shaundful to even think of

I do hope there is not a man in Georgia will be so grasping as to attempt to secure that one solitary position, which naturally belongs to a woman. Men have had the world fenced in for themselves so long that they have grown very selfish and greedy, and it is time to call them to order. They have five state institutions for boys to "lord it over," and they should not allow themselves to cover that one lone, lorn school for girls, but he forced by the powers that he to let it see verely alone, and let the women manage it. They certainly understand what girls require better than any man could possibly do.

I think it is time women had something to do with polities when an institution for women is to be tossed about by politicians, and to be caught by the one most skilled in the game.

I only wish I knew who the candidates are, so that foould tell Miss Bowen and the world what small men were engaged in such ignoble business. A Georgia woman will govern deorgia girls much better than any man can possibly do, even if he should come from the classic shades of Boston.

Boston.

Like Miss Bowen, I could mention several ladiet who are fully competent to fill the position, and iam certain they would gladly give their best efforts for the good of their sex. They have no political influence, but they have good moral characters, are duly sober and virtuous, and their qualifications as teachers are not to be surpassed.

I call for a full expression of opinion from the womanhood of Georgia.

CHILDHOOD'S HOURS NOT ALWAYS HAPPY .is a fallacy to suppose that the happiest days of a person's life are spent during childhood," said ne of Atlanta's well-known school teachers yes terday. Every one of my characteristics seemed to be un-developed except that one of sensitiveness, and that was keen and ever ready to take up and brood to speak, and continually jumping from the fry-ing-pan into the fire. I was, in fact, the scape-goat for my numerous fellows, for, when accused of a misdeed for which another was really responsible, I would flush up and stammer confusedly, which usually carried conviction to the mind of the teacher. I would then suffer my punishment without the nerve to come out boldly and claim my innocence. A sar-castic remark in my presence, or even a meaning smile, would make me miserable for a whole week. Gradually as I ablarnin', I became more self-possessed and finally w almost totally indifferent to anything in the upe of a word, look or action that appeared to other me except it be a point-blank, perso tack, and that would never cause me to lose any sleep. The chief handles something like $150,000 in money overy year, besides his other responsible duties of managing the force and protecting the lives and property of our citizens. DAMAGE SUITS.

The Atlanta Piano Company Sues the Lowry Banking Company. Yesterday the Atlanta Piano Forte Com-pany filed a suit for $50,000 damages against the Lowry Banking Company, and R. J. Lowry and W. B. Miles. The suit is based on a claim for damage growing out of the recent petition of the Lowry Banking Company asking for a receiver for the piano company. This petition was argued on January 28th before Judge Marshall J. Clark, who, after hearing the plaintiff's side of the question, dismissed the petition. The piano company claims that in this peti-tien the Lowry Banking Company set up cer-tain pleas that the piano company was in bad shape, liens were accumulating, contentions among the officers were causing disorganization; the interest on a $20,000 mortgage was unpaid, as was the insurance, and other matters were in such a condition as to warrant the appointment of a receiver. These assertions have caused the present complainants, so they claim in their petition, much trouble and loss, have damaged their credit and have caused suits to be brought on various claims that have all tended to damage the credit and good standing of the Atlanta Piano Forte Company.

For this reason the company wants heavy daniages from the Lowry Banking Company. For Twenty Thousand. L. S. Dobbs has filed a suit for $20,000 against the East Tennessee railroad. He claims that on July 9, 1890, being an employe of the road, he was badly injured. He was twenty-five years of age and earning $45 a month at the time. For this reason he sues for $20,000 damages, having, as he claims, been rendered a life-long invalid from his injuries.

WEST END AND RAPID TRANSIT.

Vigorous Action by the Citizens Toward Improvement.
West End is going to have rapid transit to and from Atlanta. A meeting of her citizens was held at the residence of Dr. E. I., Connally to consider the question, Mayor John W. Nelms being elected The following resolution was introduced and chairman.

The following resolution was introduced and adopted unanimously:

"Resolved, That we respectfully petition the city council of West End that no further rights or privileges of any kind whatever, be extended to the street railway companies at present running over any of the streets of West End until they equip all the lines now occupied by them in West End, with electric motive power in first-class condition; and unless this is done at the earliest practicable moment, not to exceed ninety days, that privileges be granted to other companies to build and operate electric railways from West End to the city of Atlanta."

Gentlemen present stated that they had, during the day, had a conference with the officials of the Atlanta Street Railroad Company, and had been assured that both their lines in West End would be thoroughly equipped with electric cars at an early day, and that these two lines would remain intact without change.

The citizens on the lines of street railroads in West End, however, said they had sheen long and patient sufferers under repeated promises of better accommodations, and as other companies stood ready to give them the improved service they asked for, they would ask the co-operation of the West End council in securing promptify and without fail, the accommodations, asked at the hands of the Atlanta Street Car Company, that had so long enjoyed a monopoly of street railroad transportation in West End, unless prompt relief was guaranteed.

West End has been patient and forbearing for a great while; but she seems determined now to have rapid transit, and comfortable street-car service.

He was selected for this courier service because of his light weight and he rede. So, which in fire ight weight, and he rode 500 miles in five

During his early manhood he did a successful mercantile business at Flat Rock, Henry county, where he owned a large cotton warehouse and did a splendid business in handling the fleecy staple.

Mr. Mitchell began his business career in tlanta in 1845. In 1848 he moved his family to Atlanta, and built his house on the lost where Mr. Sam Inman now lives.

His residence here antedates the history of Atlants, for it was a very insignificant place where three roads met in those ancient days. Still, trade was lively, for the farmers from Alabama and western Georgia came in on the Alabama road, now a great business thoroughfare: those from the procountry came down fare; those from the up-country came down the Marietta road, while those to the south drove up the Decatur road, both of which are now populous streets.

Mr. Mitchell was a born merchant, and his affable ways and genial manners were well suited to the men he dealt with in those halcyon days.

He made money, and the firm of Mitchell,

THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

In 1852, Mr. Mitchell built the large and comfortable dwelling which still remains as No. 138 Whitehall street.

Prior to his coming to Atlanta, he was wedded to Miss Mary McDaniel, an aunt of Governor Henry D. McDaniel, whose father lived in DeKalb county.

The ceremony was perfermed by Mr. Mitchell's brother-in-law, Dn. Bray, who afterwards married Mr. Mitchell's eidest daughter to Dr. E. J. Roach.

Ten children were born them, of whom six are living, Mrs. Ellen Roach, widow of Dr. E. J. Roach; Mr. H. A. Mitchell, Mr. W. P. Mitchell, Miss Annie Mitchell, Mr. O. E. Mitchell and Mr. C. B. Mitchell, all of whom live in this city. Mrs. James Bridger, another daughter, died about a year ago.

After a long term of successful commercial operations, the firm of Mitchell, Hulsey & McDaniel dissolved.

Mr. Mitchell had become so fond of the business of cotton buying, which was then very profitable, that he turned his attention to it exclusively.

During and after the war he continued in the warehouse business here and was one of the leading cotton dealers long after the dawn of the new regime.

Not until ten years ago, in 1881, did he sell out his warehouse and retire from the business.

And even then he kept on buying cotton.

AS AN OFFICIAL.

Before the war he served quite awhile as a member of the town council.

After the war he was again elected a member of the city council of Atlanta, and served with great ability.

During the administration of Mr. J. H. James, as mayor, Mr. Mitchell served as judge of police court. He was the first recorder Atlanta ever had.

His generous heart could never bear to see anybody punished severely, and those who were boys of the town in those days, say that $5 was the extreme limit of his fines.

In every walk of life, domestic or public, business or official, the same kindness of heart and cheeriness of disposition has characterized his intercourse with his fellowmen.

Mr. Mitchell accumulated an easy fortune in his more vigorous days, which was wisely invested, and has increased in yalne with the growth of the city, until he was a very wealthy man.

Mrs. Mitchell died on November 29th last, at the advanced age of seventy-eight, and since her death Mr. Mitchell's health had not been as vigorous as before.

During all his sickness, however, he was cheerful and uncomplaining.

[In publishing the following card from Dr. Hawthorne, THE CONSTITUTION begs to correct the evident impression on his mind that the criticism of the city officials of statements in his last country, learner was insuired by any unkindness.

Mayor Glenn and Commissioner Brotherston are men who form their own opinions without outside inspiration. We have no possible unkind feeling to the doctor, and would not do him an injustice for the world. Everything that has been said of his statements has been in quoting others. The Constitution's desire is simply to give the news. If such a state of affairs avaits as the doctor describes below there dealire is simply to give the news. If such a state of affairs exists as the doctor describes below, there is work for the grand jury. In justice to the city the doctor should give the names of his informants that the grand jury could summon them. As it is that the grand jury could summon them. the information is worthless. If the law is being violated the violators should be punished. This can only be done by those knowing that such is the case, giving the information.

Constitution has no cause for being unkind to me. Some of its proprietors are my personal friends, and I have rejoiced in their success in making for Georgia and the south a great newspaper. I trust that I shall be able to make a statement which will convince you that I did not say that violations of the laws regulating the sale of liquor "are winked $at by the authorities," and that I have not made "assertions that are utterly unfounded." These are grave charges to be made against a man whose function is to preach truth, veracity and justice. If you had published thuth, veracity and J am hopeful that when you have read this communication you will withdraw the charges.

One of the points of the lecture which has provoked this discussion was that liquor selling, like gambling and stealing, is an ADMITTED evil. All legislative bodies in our country ASSUME that it is a cubes, and all discussions of the subject in these bodies are limited to METHODS of dealing with the curse. I said that it is a violation of our most fundamental idea of government for the legislature of Georgia to legalize, protect and foster a traffic which every man in the state, from the highest official down to the humblest and obscurest private citizen, admits not only to be a curse to society, but a greater curse than gambling or theft. I said that legislators, while admitting the inconsistency and wrong, declare that there is some compensation in the fact that the curse is regulated. My answer to this was that it is just as consistent and not more difficult for the state to regulate adultery, arson, burglary, gambling or murder.

I showed that the regulation system was a fail-difficult for the state to regulate adultery, arson, burglary, gambling or murder.

I showed that the regulation system was a failure. The figures taken from the records of our police court illustrate the incontrovertible truth that prohibition is better than regulation. In the prohibition year of 1887 there were 1,041 cases of drunkenness brought before Atlanta's police court. In 1889, under the regulation system, there were 2,777 cases, and in 1890 there were 3,500 cases. I claimed that every feature of the regulation business is a failure. It was promised that no liquor should be sold outside of the "fire limits," but today, outside of the fire limits, there are seven whisly shops and twenty-six beer saloons. Requiring the blinds to be removed from the front doors is a failure, for the simple reason that any man who is degraded enough to patronize one of these dens cannot be kept out by the fear of being seen. Forbidding the sale of liquor on Sunday, elec-tion days and after 10 cclock p.m. is a failure. At this point I said that, while the regulations tion days and after 10 o'clock p. m. is a failure. At this point I said that, while the regulations were as well enforced in Atlanta as in any community of the state, I was reliably informed that men can and do get liquor on Sundays, election days and after 10 o'clock in the evening, from almost every barroom in the city. I have no charge to make against the city officials. I have never questioned their integrity. I admit that they are watchin, but I assert what the people of Atlanta believe, when I say that in spite of the vigilance of our officials

Que of the best known men in the south, a man whose veracity nobody would question, said to me, in the presence of two other gentlemen: "A few Sundays ago I called to see a friend at one of our hotels, and was invited to his room. I found with my friend two gentlemen of this city, While I was there a servant came in with liquor, and all drank except myself. I saw one of the Atlanta men pay the servant for the liquor."

Two Methodist ministers will testify that they were at an Atlanta hotel on Sunday a few months ago, and saw a servant bring liquor to the room of a distinguished lecturer, who was then in a state of intoxication.

a distinguished lecturer, who was then in a state of intoxication.

I received a communication from a visitor to the city, which says: "I arrived here on Sunday and got it from two different places." This communication was received yesterday, and was read by three prominent citizens of Atlanta.

A distinguished citizen of Atlanta says: "Let the matter be brought before the grand jury. I will swear that I have seen one saloon open again and again on Sunday. I will go with the grand jury to another whose back door is always open on Sunday, notwithstanding that the courts have decided that opening the back door of a barroom on Sunday is just as much a violation of the law as opening the front door."

A young merchant of Atlanta says: "Looking out of my chamber window on Sunday morning, I saw a man approach the back door of a saloon and knock. Afterwards some one opened the door and handed him a drink."

A printer will testify that he has a friend who gets liquor from a saloon almost every Sunday.

gets liquor from a saloon almost every Sunday.

A newspaper reporter will give me the name of a friend, if I should need it, who has bought it from a saloon on Sunday.

A Baptist minister says: "I was on the cars not long since coming into Atlanta, and heard a number of commercial travelers give as their reason for spending Sunday in our city, that they found it easy to get all the liquor they wanted."

Having these facts, and many more just as strong, I do not make an "unfounded assertion," when I say that "I am reliably informed that men can and do get liquor on Sunday from Atlanta barrooms."

The Championship Chess Match Becoming More Interesting.

Two games in the Wurm-Orchard chess match were played yesterday in the presence of a large crowd of spectators.

At the morning sitting Mr. Orchard had the attack, and he again tried his favorite opening, "the Evans gambit."

Professor Wurm essayed an unusual defense, beginning with B to R 4 and followed with P to Q 3 and B to Q 2. The game was identical, up to the twelfth move, with one played by Captain Mackenzie against Professor Wurm. Professor McIntosh and Dr. Harris, in consultation, and which the Atlanta players won in fine style. Mr. Orchard got an excellent position, and he might have won a pawn by a single play. However, he was anxious to get up a dazzling combination and he made a sacrifice of one of his knights. The outcome was that his wary opponent emerged from the complications with a won game, and Mr. Orchard resigned.

In the fifth game, begun about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Professor Wurm played the opening known as the "Scotch gambit." His adversary followed the defensive tactics of Blackburne and he gained two pawns. His position, however, was somewhatcramped. At a critical juncture Professor Wurm made a blunder, loshing a clear piece. The game was continued for about an hour, when Professor Wurm abandoned the contest, as defeat was inevitable. The score now stands: Orchard, 3 games; Wurm, 2 games.

The sixth game will be played this morning at

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

Exchange. NEW YORK, February 5.—The stock market continued to show great strength today and reversed the temper of yesterday [completely, while there was an increased volume of business, though the aggregate is still small. Buying today was apparently from Vanderbilt and Gould sources, but there are rumors of derbilt and Gould sources, but there are rumors of pools in several stocks, among which St. Paul and Lake Shore were conspicuous and both made handsome advances today, the latter being helped materially by the report of its earnings for the fourth week in January. Other specially strong stocks today were Lackawanna, Wheeling and Lake Erie and Pacific Mail in general line, while among the specialites there were some large gains made, Jersey Central, Delaware snd Hudson. Edison General Electric and Great and Hudson, Edison General Electric and Great Northern preferred being especially prominent. The market opened with a firm tone, but remained dull exept for those stocks which had an advantage of a port, but a stronger tone developed and late in the day an neward movement became more pro-nounced all through the list. Outside of St. Paul and the lead trust, however, there was not at any time any the lead trust, however, there was not at any time any activity. The long expected declaration of a dividend in the lead trust came today and was a great disappointment to many who have been expecting one of 1 per cent, whereas the dividend was only ½ of 1 per cent. Upon this there was heavy selling by disappointed speculators and this neutralized buying, which was indulged in by those who have been waiting for a dividend or other good news before purchasing. The stock market gained only a small fraction in early tock market gained only a small fraction in early trading, but lost all improvements later in the day, with something in addition. Other industries were effected to a large extent, and the material advance made in sugar stocks in the forenoon was entirely lost. NEW YORK, February 4.—We have had a strong and comparatively active market today, and prices closed at quite an advance, and in some instances higher than they had been since the recent great depression. The street is gradually taking the bullish utterances of the great speculators to heart, and, strange to say, it is just those houses who have been usually identified with the bear side of the market who now seem to be carrying the heaviest lines of usually identified with the bear side of the market who now seem to be carrying the heaviest lines of stocks, even the granger stocks, which have comparatively few friends, are feeling the effect of the igeneral increase in hopeful ness and scored a substantial advance today. There is no doubt that the recent buyers are our strongest and most courageous leaders and we do not think they will be satisfied with a mere turn. They have bought these stocks with the full knowledge that railroad earnings for the next three months would be poor, and they are for the next three months would be poor, and they are not likely to liquidate them until better, times have set in and higher prices ensue, and we believe that such of our friends as will have the pluck to hold stocks bought at present prices through a period of several months of bad earnings, they will reap large profits for their endurance. Lake Shore continues the most pronounced feature in the trading, and the buying of this seems more of the investment kind than speculative. For a speculator we confess we see but small margin in buying a 6 per cent stock at 112, unless a period of great prosperity were to be in store for the trunk lines. The Northern Pacifics were buoyant in confirmation of the report that the company had negotiated the balance of report that the company had negotiated the balance of its bonds on its Chicago terminals and would thus be relieved from the necessity of financing and floating a

Bonds were especially strong, and it is in these that the most money will be made in the immediate future in spite of the especially improved prospects of the stock market. Cahn & Co.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, February 4.—[Special.]—The looked for reaction in Liverpool occurred today, arrivals advancing 2@3 points, closing steady with a portion of the gain lost. It is reported here that a reaction was stimulated by reduced crop estimates, though it is difficult to understand upon what foundation a reduction in crop estimates is based. Our market responded but feebly to the advance in Liverpool, closing dull at about last evening's quotations. The small fluctuations during the day were largely, the result of the operations of a local operator, and are without significance as affecting the course of prices. A general indisposition is shown to force prices to a parity with Liverpool values, though the advices from Manchester are of a decidedly unfavorable character, and the falling off in demand for export is causing an accumulation of stocks in the large interior towns instead of a decrease, as is usual at this acason of the year. Receipts at the ports are lighter than anticipated, while the receipts at the in-

NEW YORK, February 4.—Liverpool opened quiet and steady, but during the day improved to the extent of 2-64d, closing easy at a partial decline from the best. Our market was not influenced by the foreign advices at all—in fact, if anything the tone was disappointing. The business throughout the day has been nominal and the ductuations barely covered a few points. There is an evident indecision on the part of traders, who are apparently adverse to taking the large chance on the short side any more, while the outside buying played no part whatever in the day's doings. The movement was just about what was expected and had no bearing on prices whatever. The market closes quiet and steady at almost bottom figures. Lehman Bros.

The price was around 100%(200%) when a dispatch from San Francisco reported good general rains in California and Oregon. These rains extinguished the bullish conflagration then raging in the wheat pit, and the advance was wiped out, and May wheat sold down to 90% and closed at 91% c, or %c lower than it rested yesterday. Light receipts were sufficient in their influence to corn from declining. The opening price for May was 53% c, and there was one sale at 54c. The lowest price was 53% c and the closing figure 53% c.

Oats opened dull and continued so until the bulge in wheat, when the minor cereals showed a slight advance. Tading was only fair, however, at a range of %c.

CHICAGO, February 4 .- The cold weather in the inter wheat belt from Arkansas to Ohio, coming suddenly after the long spell of mild weather and findsuddenly after the long spell of mild weather and finding the ground bare in a greater part of the entire region, caused a slight firmness at about the opening of the market this morning, but the market showed no strength or activity until the report of the Russian crop of 1890, figuring 199,009,000 bushel, although this was old news it being the lightest crop for a number of years and Bradstreet's estimate of a decrease of over 2,000,000 in the available supply on both coasts prevented all further selling by parties who anticipated a decline to about 93 cents. HE RAILWAY WORLD. ME HANDSOME NEW SLEEPING CARS FOR THE CENTRAL. ters that Will Be Read with Interest by Railroad Men All Through This Section.

The first one of five handsome new sleeping are, built for the Central railroad by the Chito Falls Car Company, of Jeffersonville, Ind., arrived in the city yesterday morning from Savanna's, where it had been sent by mistake. It was attached to train No. 4, which oft for Savannah at 7:20 o'clock last evening ad arrives at 6:30 o'clock this morning. Retarning it leaves Savannah at 8:10 p. m., arriving here at 6:45 a. m., and will follow that schedule hereafter. The Augusta, as it is named, is one of the finest slee ping cars ever seen in this section, and is probably unexcelled anywhere in the country. It was built after the Puliman patent, and contains every improvement that odern ingenuity can suggest. It is lighted by the Pintsch gas system, containing eight chandeliers, each having four burners. The center effect at night when the light is turned on is striking, the brilliant, steady glow brightening the appearance of the beautiful interior. hits are also placed over the platforms, and are especially valuable in lighting passengers to and from the car st small way stations on dark nights. Heat is furnished by the celebrated Baker eater. A complete system of electric belis is part of the outfit, every berth, upper and ver, smokingroom, toilet and private rooms and the platforms being furnished with them.

The whole interior is finished in highly polished and carved mahogany. The seats are finished in peacock-blue silk plush, and the floor is carpeted with prettily designed Moqette. There are ten sections in the car, each ontaining a lower and upper berth, and in ddition are a smoking room, private dressing oun, bathrooms and ordinaries. The out-or and is artistically decorated in black and Each of these cars cost complete $15,000. The other four will arrive later on at intervals of one or two weeks. The second one is expected here in about ten days. Three of the thers have been named respectively, Savan-de appearance is in keeping with the inter-

The freight rate committee of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association held an all-day session, with a short intermission for lunch, yesterday, and adjourned to meet again on the yesterday, and adjourned to meet again on the 24th instant at the Tampa Bay hotel, Tampa, Fla. The date of meeting of the Southern Passenger Association has been changed to the same date at Association has been changed to the same date at the same place, to accommodate a large number of the representatives of railroads belonging to both associations.

The Savannah, Florida and Western railroad is on, it having recently joined. When the rest of the system will join is a question, but it is thought that time will see it all in the fold. The Charleston and Savannah is looked upon as the ciation has invited all roads east of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio to become mem-bers, but none of them have yet made a move to

It is said the new road, Alabama Mineral, which extends from Atlanta to Calera, Ala., is experi-ucing some trouble now on account of some little freshets on the line, caused by the late rains. No rain, either freight or passenger, was run Sun-lay, as is wont. Monday the time table was a day, as is wont. Monday the time table was a little repaired. It usually is the case with new roads that little besetments occur in the settling of the roadbed. This road promises to be a profit-

An old gentleman went into the Savannah, Florida and Western office at Jacksonville, Sunday, and presented a reduced rate ticket for the day, and presented a reduced rate ticket for the far west to be signed. The original purchaser wrote a beautiful Spencerian hand, and, although the old gentleman had practiced a day and had spoiled hundreds of sheets of paper, when he came to sign his hand shook with the palsy, and the autograph looked as if it was about to fall to pieces. The ticket was refused and the old gentleman left with his heart bowed down.

Captain Sanford L. Bell, the veteran passenger road, has been appointed stock claim agent of the road. The position is an important one and Mr. Bell is thoroughly competent to fill it.

The Middle Georgia and Atlantic (railroad, an ir-line from Atlanta to the sea, will prove a great neveloper for this section of the state, says the Sandersville Progress. The gross earnings of the Louisville and Nash-ville railroad for 1890 were $1,651,839, a decreaes from the corresponding period of 1889 of $2,214.

Tuesday, at Calhoun, the books of subscription to the stock of the Fort Payne and Eastern rail-to the stock of the Fort Payne and Eastern railroad were publicly opened and the whole amount of the capital stock immediately subscribed. The capital stock is $2,000,000, and Colonel R. T. Armstrong and associates subscribed the whole amount. That fact alone shows that the road will come to Rome, for, being a loyal Roman, Colonel Armstrong will use his influence to bring the road to this point.

The road is to run from Fort Payne to Rome, from Rome to Gainesville, and from Gainesville to Savannah, thus giving this whole section another and more direct outlet to the sea. The stockholders will meet in Rome on the 28th of February, for the purpose of effecting an organization and electing a president, other officers and a board of directors, and as soon as this is done a corps of engineers will be put in the field at once to lay out the route to the sea.—Rome Tribune.

We just want to say, that the trade we are enjoying on our Rijamo coffee is wonderful. The Rijamo is a combination coffee, roasted fresh every few days from the very best selected coffee bean and its equal cannot be found in the country. We have been selling it for four years, and all who have tried it pronounce it unrivaled in aroma and flavor. Try a dollar's worth of our Rijamo coffee and you will be delighted.

Now, good bread—good baead. Bread is the staff of life, and, to have good bread, you must have good flour. Have you ever tried the Regal Patent flour? If not, try one sack or barrel; it is the finest and purest flour that can be made. For pastry, biscutts or light-bread, it is unexcelled We will also save you money on canned goods. Our standard California peaches, pears, white cherries and apricots are going fast at the very low price we have put on them. Just think of these goods at $3.50 per dozen. All of the fruit crops were a failure last year, but we bought early in the season, and are prepared to offer our customers bargains in them.

Also, Thurber's Windom corn, at 15 cents. The First Prize condensed milk, only 15 cents. The first of a new month has again arrived, and we suggest to those who wish the freshest and best goods to give us a trial. Our stock is the largest and most varied in the city. Our large trade enables us to sell the very best goods at the closest prices, and insures then

What is it that makes women more smiling and happy looking than men? We meet them on the cars, on the street, in the country, by the seashore, always smiling, teeth a glistening, eyes a dancing. Ah! the secret is they aim to please. It is an effort in many instances for them to smile, and were it not for a desire to look pleasing and pretty many would "neaer smile again." Why? Because in a large majority of instances they don't feel like smiling. They feel more like crying. With their nervous aches, weakness and bearing down pains, life to them is a burden. What a gold-find to many a physician is a rich sick woman. Why should he aim to cure her and deny himself the pleasure of presenting his bills with the usual regularity. It seems from the following, that the surest and cheapest way for invalid women to re-gain health and strength is by using Botanic Blood Balm (B. B. B.)

Mrs. J. A. White, 340 Wythe Street, Petersburg, Va., writes: "I have used B. B. B. with happy results, and others have taken it at my advice and are delighted with its curative results.

J. N. Gregory, Butler Postoffice, S. C., writes:
"My wife had been under the treatment of several good physicians, but continued in poor health, so I bought four bottles of Botanic Blood Balm, and it did her more good than those doctors had done her in ten years. She is now doing her own washng, a thing she had not been able to do fo wed fri sun

BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS WAS COMPLETED YESTERDAY.

P. J. CLINE, mayor of Milledgeville. T. B. FELDER, mayor of Americus. P. W. MELDRIM, of Savannah. W. R. HAMMOND, of Atlanta.

That is the board of commissioners for the colored college, to be established under an act of the last legislature. The list was completed yesterday.

The board will hold its first meeting in Atlanta, at the capitol, on the 18th of February-Wednesday. The call will be issued today. The commissioners elect their own presiding officer and other officers, and also elect one member to become a trustee of the State university.

Improving the Capitol Grounds. The commission in charge of this work met yesterday at 11 o'clock in the governor's office and opened the various bids that had been handed in. All these bids were referred to the engineer in charge, Captain Clayton, for his inspection and in order that he may reduce them to the exact figures in dollars for the several features of the work.

The commission will meet this morning at 11 o'clock and will probably make the awards. Hurry Up Those Bonds. Some tax receivers and some tax collectors are going to find themselves out of a job presently, through their own neglect. The law requires the bonds of these officers to be filed at the executive department within forty days of the election. The lelection was held on the 7th of January. The bonds must be filed in the executive office, then, before Otherwise a vacancy in that office will be declared, and another election ordered. So far, these bonds have come in from just forty counties of the 137 in the state. Either this is because the bonds have not been made or because the ordinary has not forwarded

Soldiers' Pensions. Ninety-one pensions have been paid. The department was busy yesterday again mailing circulars, and will be today. Some figures from the pension records show how Atlanta is growing.

Last year 165 pensions were paid in Fulton county. Already now, out of the ninety-one pensions paid, there were seven in Fulton county that did not live here last year.

Another notable but very natural feature is that the first pensions presented are the big pensions. Nearly all those paid so far are $100 and $50. Appointed Solicitor.

Hon. B. D. Evans, of Sandersville, has been appointed solicitor general of the Middle circuit. This is the office vacated by the death of Colonel O. H. Rogers. Colonel Evans has been a member of the most prominent young lawyers of his circuit. His home is at Sandersville. Nothing gained by waiting—go at once and buy Salvation Oil. Price only 25 cents. For a cough or cold you cannot find a better remedy than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Swift's Specific we regard a remedy for Rheumatism as much as for any other blood poison. No matter as to what form of blood disease, whether simple blood humor or real blood poison, the Swift's Specific seems to cure just the same.

The Doctors Falled.

I suffered for about six months with acute rheumatism. The doctors failed to benefit me. I tried a change of climate without any good effects. I was then persuaded to try S. S. S.. and was permanently cured after tak. ing four bottles of this excellent medicine.

Chas. Lawrence, Ashland, Neb.

No Return of the Disease.

In 1887 I gave you a testimonial showing that S. S., had cured me of rheumatism of several years' standing, and I take pleasure in saying that I have never had any return of the disease. As a tonic in the spring S. S. S., is a splendid medicine. J. H. M. Martin, Jackson, Miss.
